French Batteries On Algerian Coast Fire On British Warships Attempting To Halt Convoyed Steamers

The admiralty said the destroyers Vincenzo Gioberto and Maestrale were sunk, along with three cruisers, that a third destroyer was a "probable" victim and that the 5,800-ton cruiser, Giovanni Delle Bande Nere possibly had been sent to the bottom.

Athens dispatches said survivors of three destroyed cruisers, the Alfiera, Albatros and Albatros, were rescued by the Albatros.

F. D. R. URGES UNITY IN WAR AGAINST NAZI

Countries Asked To Stand Unitedly Behind
War Aid Program

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—American aid to every political creed were summed up by President Roosevelt Saturday night in a broadcast to a determination that "with all our resources and all our power, we shall help those who block the dictator in their march toward domination of the world."

Arising from an "alliance of disaster nations," the President warned, it is a threat to the United States, its union, its democracy, and its cardinal principles of freedom—a threat which "draws more tightly around us day by day."

But, speaking to new Democrats attending party rallies throughout the country, Mr. Roosevelt declared that to meet the threat, nearly all Americans had risen above considerations of party politics and had remained devoted to country and democratic ideals.

ATTEMPT DISTINCTION

The President's radio address from the officers' wardroom of the White House yacht, "Potomac," to a "Jackson Day" dinner held to raise money for the Democratic party.

The enemies of democracy, Mr. Roosevelt declared, are "trying to destroy our unity" using as their chief weapon a propaganda of increasing quantity and violence.

Agents of Nazism and their unwitting helpers, he said, have attempted to exploit the natural love of Americans for peace.

"They have represented themselves as pacifists when actually they are serving the most wicked warmongers of all time. They have preached 'peace' in the same way the devil can quote scripture."

"Of course, the purpose of all this has been to spread the terror among us. The effect of it has been only to fortify our determination."

Coupling a denunciation of Nazism and Nazism with a renewed promise of United States help for nations resisting them, the address was in many ways a repitition which served to emphasize his own words.

The president last night was northward bound by train on the way to Washington.

The cruise, Mr. Roosevelt said, had given him time not only for recreation but also for meditation, and he had "become more than ever clear that the time calls for courage and more courage—action, and more action."

PRaises WILKIE
In the statement that United States resources and power would assist those standing in the path of dictators was an implied rebuke of the American effort to stay Yugoslavia. And the decision that was reached on aiding opponents of dictatorship, Mr. Roosevelt declared, was not a partisan one.

He added: "A leader of the Republican Party himself, Mr. Wendell Wilkie—in word and in action—is showing what patriotic Americans mean by rising above partisanism and rallying to the common cause."

And now that the plain people of America have spoken their determination, Republicans and Democrats in the Congress and out of the Congress are patriotically cooperating to make that determination take positive form."

Today's War Moves

British battleships seemingly opened fire on them out of range of retaliation before the Italians realized they were in danger.

The rest of the Italian fleet does not seem to have moved to the rescue, but apparently started homeward, several units being damaged on route.

The unprovoked fact that no British warship was damaged and there were no British casualties resulted from the longer range of the British guns and the refusal of the Italians to close in for combat.

ATTACK ON CONVOYS
A fleet as powerful as the British destroyer force, the Italian warship command does not normally put in sea without a prime objective in view. The purpose can be supposed.

Well Wilkie—in word and in action—is showing what patriotic Americans mean by rising above partisanism and rallying to the common cause.

And now that the plain people of America have spoken their determination, Republicans and Democrats in the Congress and out of the Congress are patriotically cooperating to make that determination take positive form."

The consequence of the British victory has been to cripple the Italian navy so severely that the British can either lessen their Mediterranean naval strength or else divide it more effectively. They can detach some ships for Atlantic convoy duty after their return.

And beyond this is the decision on the ultimate step of using the United States navy, if it can be, to square safe delivery of arms and supplies from the "arsenal of democracy."

The spectacular victories won by British during and active employment of seapower in the Mediterranean theatre has led recently to overthrow the war at sea, but probably has little affected the men who shape policies in London, Berlin and Washington.

The action of the Italian and German vessels was dictated by first instinct. War experience as well as by the logic of the current conflict.

With small guard crews aboard, the vessels are safe from further damage of sabotage such as disabled the German liner, while the United States look over in 1941 and converted, after delays, into transports that helped ferry the American expeditionary force to France.

Sunday's summary action seemed to have decided at least partially the escorted ships to sea just undertaken by Axis ships from South America and far eastern ports.

Three German and Italian ships, the Bremen, Franco, Matelli and Fieser, slipped out of Brazilian ports Friday night and Saturday and four others apparently were getting ready to leave Argentina and Brazilian ports. From Shanghai the 7,881-ton Nazi passenger liner Hannover sailed in company with the Japanese destroyers.

In United States ports meanwhile, in addition to the Axis-owned vessels, several more other cargo carriers are able within the flag of countries formerly independent and now under control of Germany or Russia.

Whether the President has the right power to regulate them under the wartime right of seizure is still a matter of controversy.

turn for home after the one called by the British planes.

It was known, authoritative sources said here, that the battleships was hit three times at least by airplane torpedoes—Italy's newest and most powerful battleships.

"SHALL I BOARD HER?"
The great and astonishing battle was fought Friday night, in the deep dark of a moonless night.

The captain of the destroyer Havoc, which went in to finish off the Italian cruiser after the British gun broadsides of three British battleships, radiated Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, the commander in chief.

"I am hanging on to the stern of the cruiser Pola. Shall I board her or blow her stern off with depth charges?"

Admiral Cunningham's reply was not disclosed—but the Pola was sunk.

Cunningham's reply was not disclosed—but the Pola was sunk.

"I am grateful in all the fleet for their support on this and all other occasions."

"Well done."

The British Mediterranean fleet now has drifted back to port with one scratch and without a single casualty after the victory.

ANTONISHING BATTLE
Some here say the victory of this British fleet with which I have spent more than one month, a first which again and again steamed up so close to Italian fortresses that we could see them through binoculars may prove to have been one of the most decisive naval engagements in its ultimate implications, since Trafalgar.

There seems no doubt that the battle was one of the most astonishing in naval history.

It is asserted here that the Italian fleet hardly exists any more except in name and on paper. Its striking force has been reduced to a shell.

British cruisers known sunk, one probably sunk, two destroyed, one a third probably sunk, the 25,000-ton battleship crippled, other ships undoubtedly damaged; the battleship badly hit; it was forced to retreat speed from more than 30 knots to about 15 knots. That, and the fact that two blow have been struck against the remainder of the fleet as it hid in Italian harbors, was taken to mean that Italy's vainest sea power was no more.

The battle took place between 10 p.m. and midnight Friday—the first sea battle by night since Jutland.

CLASH WITH FRENCH
At the other end of the Mediterranean, other British warships caught in a French convoy and exchanged shots with those last leaves on the Algerian coast, the admiral said, in the fourth class between British and her former ally since France capitulated last June.

An authoritative source, saying the French speeded fire to prevent the normal process of "visit and destroy" British ships, intended "fully to maintain" her belligerent rights of blockade despite Vichy's objections.

A spokesman for the ministry of economic warfare said Britain had information a "German program" for shipments from unoccupied France to Germany included important war materials.

This schedule, he asserted, included "priority" between Jan. 10 and March 1 for the following items: 10,000 tons of aluminum, 1,000 tons of raw rubber and 2,300 tons of Chinese cotton.

"It long has been known that French merchant ships have been carrying goods to French ports from which they soon reach Germany," he said.

R.A.F. BLASTS HARBOR NEAR NAZI RAIDERS

which they were lying were already under way, directing with medium, large and very large bombs. Many more of them fell on the coast and some were seen on the dark sea.

"Fire broke out soon afterwards and were burning, well when the last of our aircraft left, from a tank, a machine gun or the same command bombed the harbor and started many fires."

Admiralty reported confidentially that British bombers had scored five hits on two enemy tankers in the Dover area after 11.30 a.m. Both vessels were seen after midnight.

GLIMPSE OPENS UP
Brink opening along the Channel mouth throughout the night and morning was dimmed when German ships began firing from the shore. The first shot was a shell falling at regular intervals in the Dover area after 11.30 a.m., although no casualties or damage were reported.

White Britain expected a night assault devoid of air raiders. British planes roared back and forth across the Channel in a continuous stream for hours, dumping their loads along the French shores in view of crowds lining the cliffs at Dover, Folkestone and elsewhere on the British side.

A dispatch from Folkestone and the British raid started about 9 p.m., and that Calais, the first target was bombed for an hour. The weather was clear on the English side but the glow of searchlights and sparks of burning anti-aircraft shells were reflected against a bank of heavy clouds on the French side. On Folkestone watchers heard a terrific crash and saw flames about 200 feet into the air. The fire burned for a few minutes, then subsided as if a ship had burned and suddenly had sunk.

William Darnley, West Prospect fort, B.I. accidentally had a bullet through his leg in 1928. Recently he missed, and the bullet emerged from a nostril.

The enemy was called upon to stop, inside Spanish territorial waters a communication said, whereupon "French battleships opened up on our ships, notwithstanding that they were merely engaged in the exercise of our legitimate rights."

On the way back to Gibraltar, the British vessels were attacked twice by French bombers, "but without suffering damage or casualties."

The Vichy government claimed a large British naval force attack of four French warships, a convoy of French merchant ships.

Nearly 1,000 Italian survivors were rescued Saturday morning, the Admiralty said.

"It would have been possible to save 200 or 300 more but for the attack by German bombers on the ships engaged in the task of rescuing Italian seamen."

Two German dive bombers were shot down, it reported.

The British signalled to the chief of the Italian naval staff the position of the Italian seamen survivors with a suggestion that a hospital ship should be sent.

"A reply was received," the Admiralty reported, "and it is therefore possible that some of the men may be rescued."

It listed as saved Captain Dreyer of the cruiser Pola but declared Admiral Cantelani, commanding the Italian right-hand cruiser squadron, was missing.

Meanwhile, British naval units out of Gibraltar sought to intercept a French convoy Sunday morning only to run into the fire of French battleships.

The admiral said "regrets had been received . . . that the convoy carried important war material for Germany" and that Britain only inferred was the "normal procedure of visit and search."

Looking them Over

JACK KELLY

DECISION to move the fifth and deciding game of western junior semi-finals to Saskatoon was made Sunday by Dr. W. G. Hardy, C.A.H.A. official in charge of western Canada playdowns. The move came as a result of strong demands from Saskatoon fans for at least one game of the best of five series between the Quakers and E.A.C.

Although there was a general impression here that the entire series would be fought out on Edmonton ice, Dr. Hardy explained that he had kept decision on the site of the final game in abeyance.

The E.A.C. welcomed the shift in a way since it gave the boys a trip that they had been hoping for. Both clubs held Sunday night for Saskatoon and those the game will not be played until Tuesday evening. The Edmonton team will have a chance to get in a practice warm-up and a good sleep tonight.

Quakers objected strongly to the postponing to Saturday night's game. They contended that nine penalties handed them against two to the E.A.C. would do nothing by then. Early today Dr. Hardy had not definitely decided on officials for Tuesday. He is trying to get in touch with Buster Hargrave, head of the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association, who has charge of western playdowns. Both teams left for the Saskatchewan city on last night's train.

Personally I have seen better officiating than Saturday produced. One or two of the calls against the Quakers were so close that they might have been overlooked. However the boys with the whistles missed a lot and the players who were penalized certainly earned bench sentences at one time or another during the game.

The shift to Saskatoon ice and a change in officials may head off the battle royal that was shaping up between the two clubs here Saturday night.

The E.A.C. was full value for its 7-2 win that secured the series at two games each. While those who didn't see it probably won't believe it possible, the fact remains that the Edmonton actually scored three goals in power plays. However apart from the question of whether or not the Quakers got a bad deal in the officiating, the Edmonton team gave every indication that it would have won even if ten penalties had been handed Saskatoon.

How the move to Saskatoon ice will affect the Edmonton team, no one can tell. The club executive had the foresight to send the team to the city on Sunday evening and so give them a chance to get some familiarity with the rink and a good sleep.

In the event that the E.A.C. wins at Saskatoon, the team will return to play the first game of the western final against Winnipeg Quakers at the Arena here on Thursday and Saturday.

Leads and Smokes May Play Here

EDMONTON fans will get another look at junior hockey of Lethbridge E. should beat Trail tonight, Dr. Hardy announces. A Lethbridge win would be the best of two series between the teams. If the Quakers get a bad deal in the officiating, the Edmonton team gave every indication that it would have won even if ten penalties had been handed Saskatoon.

With no less than six Lethbridge Major Leads being Edmonton boys such a game should draw well—especially since there are also a goodly number of Edmontonians who would like to see the Leads smacked down.

PASTOR GIVES FIRST SERMON AT KNOX CHURCH

Today is Testing Time For Faith, Rev. E. G. Turnbull Says

Delivering his inaugural sermon at Knox United Church Sunday morning, Rev. E. G. Turnbull, B.A., R.D., former of Wesley United Church, Fort William, Ont., has given his first sermon at the church since his arrival in this city.

"And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with swelling of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God. For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and Him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in much trembling."

Rev. Turnbull said that he felt this text most appropriate for a pastor giving his first sermon to a new congregation. For, he said, he felt that only through his ministering he would be able to impart the gospel to the church.

There are 70,000 church members in this modern turbulent world finding their faiths tested by the forces of modernism, and the reality of living in a world where the truth of the rock of ages is being questioned.

Rev. Turnbull's evening text was from a passage in the Bible which reads: "Behold I stand at the door and knock." He said that Christ, at the door of the church today, and any Christian may open the door to let Christ in.

A young person's social hour followed the evening service. The Rev. Mr. McNeill, United Church, Sunday morning, Rev. A. K. McNeill spoke on the subject "A Faith in the Future."

Continuing his series "The Triumph of the Cross," Rev. Daniel spoke on the subject "The Cross as a Sign of Victory."

Rev. O. R. Lenz, M.A., B.D., was guest preacher at Robertson United Church Sunday evening, and at the morning service, the Rev. J. Gordon Brown, spoke on "The Endurance of Religion."
